INTERNATIONAL PRESS AWARD XVII COMPETITION 2025

1. Purpose and subject area

The Mare Nostrum International Journalism Awards, organised by Grimaldi Mare Nostrum magazine, is now in its 17th edition. To adapt to changes in the global shipping scenario and also the environmental sensitivity that inspires all the Grimaldi Group's actions, the cultural aims of the awards and the related thematic range of the works considered have been broadened. Therefore, papers will be considered which:

- 1) promote awareness of the Motorways of the Sea as an environmentally sustainable alternative to road freight transport;
- 2) focus on promoting and developing maritime transport in the Mediterranean for tourism;
- 3) highlight the benefits enlightened maritime business generates for the health of the marine ecosystem.

Entries will therefore be able to spread the word about the advantages of maritime connections carried out with modern, safe and fast ships from an economic, tourist, environmental and social point of view.

2. Requirements for participation

Between 20 September 2024 and 20 April 2025, professional and freelance journalists, photographers, videographers and writers in general who cover the topics described in the subject area can participate in the awards. The competition is open to individuals residing in Europe and Tunisia, and works may be submitted in Italian, English, Spanish, Catalan, French or Greek. The prizes will be awarded to journalistic reports, documentaries, television or radio reports, photographic reportage, as well as economic/tourist investigations that the jury deems to be in line with the aims for which the awards were established. Papers consisting of mere interviews with a single person will not be considered.

3. Media

Entries published/broadcast in the languages indicated above will be allowed to compete through:
